ABSTRACT

This bibliography on junior college libraries incorporates approximately 750 titles of both published and unpublished material. Although materials on library technician programs are included, materials on audio-visual programs are generally excluded. A list of ten organizations that would be useful in planning a comprehensive junior college library is attached. (RC)

JUNIOR COLLEGE LIBRARIES: A CHECKLIST OF ABOUT 750 PUBLISHED AND UNPUBLISHED SOURCES

This list was compiled early in 1970 when I studied at San Diego State College. In trying to locate some information on junior college libraries, I saw a need for a comprehensive checklist of material for this type of libraries. Many bibliographies are available on libraries, junior colleges, and junior college libraries but they cover only certain aspects and periods of junior college libraries.

A reasonable effort has been made to locate and to include in this checklist as many sources as possible directly dealing with junior college libraries. Excluded are, for example, articles on audio-visual material in general even though they would be valid for and applicable to the situation in a junior college library. On the other hand, some material on junior college library technician programs are included. In some cases, an educated guess had to be made of whether or not an item was suitable for inclusion. No doubt, much material will have eluded my search; and also, I regret that it was not feasible to check all items in their original source for bibliographical accuracy. I will be grateful to anyone drawing my attention to sources omitted or incorrectly quoted. I am also aware that not all items are entered according to the Anglo-American Cataloging Rules. Despite these shortcomings, I hope that this list will lay the foundation for a comprehensive bibliography on junior college libraries which also will need a subject approach.

I want to express my gratitude to the ERIC Clearinghouse for Junior College Information, the Reference Department of the Library of Congress, and especially the Interlibrary Loans Department of San Diego State College Library for the help rendered to me. Last not least, without the support of my wife Sharon, I hardly would have been able to complete this checklist.
